

Managing personal health and corporate wellbeing.

Occupational Health Services

Our Occupational Health service aims to ensure that people can be as effective as possible in their work and that their health is protected. Occupational Health is available for both small and large businesses, whether you are a single individual requiring ad hoc services or a large corporate company seeking a more bespoke solution.

Regardless of your company's size, Occupational Health Support is vital in taking care of the health of your workforce. Whether a managed onsite service, or access to ad hoc support, your choice of service offered by people with the right specialist knowledge is critical.

Manage Health will help you to select and implement the most suitable Occupational Health service for your needs.

As independent advisors, Manage Health as such do not provide Occupational Health Services ourselves. Working with you, we'll help you to source the most appropriate service provider for your needs. We can:

- Perform a business audit of existing Occupational Health Service or Provider
- Work with existing Occupational Health team to refocus goals and activities
- Provide a market search and review of alternative Occupational Health suppliers
- Act as intermediary and facilitator during review or tender process
- Report on the viability of outsourcing the service
- Market search and review of access to ad hoc Occupational Health Services

The range of Occupational Health Services we can source for you can include all of the following:
